DEPARTMENTAL LIBRARY

The Departmental Library has a collection of approximately 2,121 books, along with a substantial number of academic Journals, and a rich archive of theses from Ph.D. and M.Phil scholars. The library provides an isolated and conducive reading environment, accommodating up to thirty students at a time, ensuring a quiet and focused space for reading. In addition to its comprehensive collection of reference and textbooks, the library offers access to daily newspapers, magazines, and materials related to general studies, supporting an overall academic growth of students and faculty. Furthermore, the Library is fully equipped with internet facilities and a projector. This enables students to have access to digital resources and therefore enhances their learning.
